Performance poet Chris Chandler has joined forces with world-class roots and Americana guitar guru Paul Benoit. Together their styles merge like lanes on an outbound interstate.

The show is as hilarious and entertaining as it is provocative and rabble-rousing. Chandler and Benoit have performed on thousands of stages working with such diverse figures as Allen Ginsberg to Mojo Nixon and Pete Seeger to Ani DiFranco.

Delivering vignettes about politics and modern culture, a skinny bald dynamo with the fire of a Baptist preacher is joined with a world class slide guitar virtuoso to deliver an award winning multimedia show rooted in the streets of America and colored with the blues.

This show is a style and a genre like no other. It is performance art, poetry, storytelling, short films, multimedia, folk music.

Chandler & Benoit have just released their first CD together: So, Where Ya headed?

"The most radically creative act on the coffee house Circuit." - The Boston Herald

"The duo deftly weaves lefty activism and literary surrealism." - Nancy Redwine The Santa Cruz Sentinel

"the best performance poet I have ever seen." - Utah Phillips

"This Man Is Dangerous" - The Washington Post

"Great Work, Ever Thought Of Trying It In Calypso?" - Allen Ginsberg

"Together they fuse like sodium and chlorine into salty substance, and the recording goes down like a strong, salt-encrusted Margarita.... Hits you hard, and leaves your head spinning." - Rich Warren Sing Out!
